

GREEN THUMB

a list just for you,
[FIRST NAME]

Plant for Summer

It's still a great time to plant, so liven up your landscape as needed with summer-blooming shrubs like easy-care shrub roses that are naturally disease resistant. Fertilome Root Stimulator adds a great boost.

Wet Spring = Fungus Among Us

Use Fertilome Fungonil on shrubs at first sign of fungus.

Your Blooming Secret

As you probably know, when you pinch off dying/dead flowers, you'll make room for even more (just a friendly reminder because who doesn't appreciate the extra blooms!). You can also help things along with Fertilome Blooming and Rooting 9-59-8.

Control Hungry Pests

We rely on Eight to keep our friends healthy. It was created especially for the treatment of scale, mites and aphids. We find it's best to spray on calm days in the early morning when temps are under 70.

Take Care of Tomatoes

It's a good time to protect your tomatoes from insects. We suggest Eight or you can do it naturally with Veggie Pharm from Nature Made Better, an organic insecticide that controls over 100 different types of insects and will not harm children, pets or birds.

A Little Strategic Pruning

Pull out those pruners for early spring flowering trees and shrubs like lilacs (once their flowers have faded or fallen). Trim any wayward branches right above one or more healthy leaf buds. If you have questions, feel free to call, stop in or visit altums.com/altums-has-the-answers/how-to-guide.

Room for Change?

5 STEPS TO PLANNING (AND LOVING) YOUR OUTDOOR ROOM

Some people can picture their dream space, see themselves enjoying a book on a cozy patio or sharing dinner with family and friends in their outdoor kitchen. You might be the type who tears out pages from magazines and tucks them away for inspiration. Or not. Either way, here's your chance to live in and love your outdoor space.

1 DREAM A LITTLE Have fun considering the possibilities like a patio or deck, a fabric or vine-draped pergola or tall evergreen screen. Even a simple addition like a granite bench, water feature, or oversized containers in interesting shapes and colors. And of course, trees and plants.

2 TAKE STOCK OF YOUR PROPERTY... AND YOUR PERSONALITY Walk your property with a notepad and capture your thoughts. Then be honest about how you want to use it and how much time you want to invest.

3 PUT A PLAN ON PAPER This is where a landscape designer can really bring things to life. She'll design with thought to layout, exposure, your goals, and overall flow of the space.

4 MAKE ADJUSTMENTS Having a plan doesn't mean you can't change your mind. Put it down and come back to it. Nothing is set in stone, unless it's literally set in stone! Request your consultation at altums.com/landscaping/request-a-consultation/.

5 MOVE FORWARD AT YOUR PACE It's your space, so take on one area at a time. The beauty of the plan is you'll always be working with the end in mind, saving yourself time and money. And you can always make seasonal updates as the seasons change, giving your outdoor space year round style.
